The Blue Hippopotamus

By Phoebe Gilman

What kind of magic can turn a hippopotamus into a boy?

This is a beautiful story of love and transformation. When a little hippo falls in love with the Pharoah's daughter, he hopes that a great magician can turn him into a human boy.

Everyday Literacy

You are your child's first and most important teacher!

Children learn from their parents and the world around them. They truly are like little sponges soaking up all of the words and letters that they see everywhere.

- When a child is looking at a cereal box at home, you can show them that we know the name of the cereal by pointing to the letters on the box, or the title of a story from the letters on the front of a book.

Take advantage of their thirst for knowledge and awaken their early learning and literacy
